ECLIPSES FOR THE YEAR 1890.

This year there will be five Eclipses, three of the Sun and one of the Moon, also a Lunar Appulse. A Lunar Appulse, June 3, 1 o'clock, 19 minutes in the morning, visible here. The nearness of the approach and the uncertainty as to the effect of the earth's atmosphere renders it doubtful whether the moon will enter the shadow of the earth or not.

I. The first is an Annular Eclipse of the Sun, June 17th, 4 o'clock, 58 minutes, in the morning, invisible in North America, visible in Africa and Asia.

II. The second is a Partial Eclipse of the Moon, November 26, 8 o'clock, 33 minutes, in the morning, invisible in America; visible generally in Asia, India and the Pacific Ocean.

III. The third is a Central Eclipse of the Sun, December 11, 1 o'clock, 14 minutes, in the evening, invisible in America, visible in Australia, South Atlantic and Indian Ocean. This Eclipse will be total between the hours of 8.55 and 11.20, and annular at the beginning and end.

Carefully calculated for the Meridian of Philadelphia and adjacent States by Will. R. Ibach, Newmantown, Leb. Co., Pa., suc. to L. J. Ibach.

A Psalm for the New Year.

O NEW YEAR, teach us faith!

The road of life is hard;

When our feet bleed and scourging winds us scathe,

Point thou to Him whose visage was more marred
Than any man's; who saith,

"Make straight paths for your feet," and to the op-
prest,

"Come ye to Me, and I will give you rest."

Yet hang some lamp-like hope

Above this unknown way,

Kind year, to give our spirits freer scope

And our hands strength to work while it is day.

But if that way must slope

Tombward, O bring before our fading eyes

The lamp of life, the hope that never dies.

Comfort our souls with love—

Love of all human kind;

Love special, close, in which, like sheltered dove,

Each weary heart its own safe nest may find;

And love that turns above

Adoringly; contented to resign

All loves, if need be, for the love Divine.

Friend, come thou like a friend,

And whether bright thy face

Or dim with clouds we cannot comprehend,

We'll hold our patient hands, each in his place,

And trust thee to the end,

Knowing thou ledest onward to those spheres

Where there are neither days, nor months, nor years.

—Dinah Mulock-Craik.

Doing One's Best.

One's best is a very variable quantity. Duties must be done, obligations met, responsibilities discharged, irrespective of our moods and often of our capabilities. When the hour strikes for certain work to be done, we must be on hand and do it with little regard to whether we can do it well or ill. But all that is required of us is to do the best we can at the time; and it is accepted of a man according to that he hath, and not according to that he hath not.

The house-mother often rises in the morning feeling quite inadequate to meet the requirements of the day. As she sees what her children need, and compares their needs with her ability to meet them, she can but exclaim, "Who is sufficient for these things?" There is nothing for her to do but to do the best she can, even though it be a very poor best.

When nine o'clock calls the teacher to her pupils, not always is she in the best mood for answering that call. But she is required only to do the best she can.

The student sits down to a hard lesson, perhaps with aching head, with dull perceptions, with unretentive memory, and his very efforts fail to make him master of it. His conscience may give him the peace his standing in the recitation room denies.

There are some things for which we may be held responsible in the matter of doing our best. Whatever that is avoidable by us, and that robs us of that ability, we are in duty bound to avoid. We cannot knowingly and willingly put it out of our power to do our best and then complain of the result or deny our responsibility for it.

Sometimes the very "stars in their courses" seem to fight against us as they fought against Sisera. The skies are clouded, the storm howls about us, the atmosphere is oppressive, and our "environment" suppresses, chokes us. Even then all we are required to do is our best and leave results with a higher power.

To worship God in spirit, is the service and homage of the heart, and implies fear of God and trust in Him.—Luther.

Extract of a Sermon.

BY MASTER JOHN TAULER, WHO LIVED OVER FIVE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

“Dear children, there are many crosses that we are called to bear in following the Lord. We are called to bear about in our bodies the dying of Jesus, and to take up our cross daily. But there is only one cross upon which the work of our salvation was wrought and finished—the cross of Christ, of Him who is God and man. There is no other way to be delivered from the burden of our sins—no other way to grace and holiness and blessedness—no other way to come to God, than by the cross of Jesus.

“By this way, and by this way alone, have all the saints drawn near to God. How much might I not say of this the cross of Christ, and yet never could any man say enough! For it is far beyond the mind of the high angels to understand how the eternal God in His great love became a man and suffered the deepest shame and the bitterest sorrow for us.

“See Him, dear children, hanging between two thieves, that the sin might be laid on Him; for He, in His love, desired to bear it in the place of his enemies. What greater and more perfect love could He have shown us than to take upon Himself the mighty burden, and bear it, not for His friends, but for those who hated Him?

“He who knew no sin bore Himself thy sin, O sinner—bore it as if it were His own. And thus thy sin was, as it were, His sin, and the work He did for thee is the only work thou canst bring to God. Thy sin His sin, His work thy work, for He suffered for thy sin as if He Himself had been the sinner.

“Oh how light to us should be any suffering for Him, as a good knight would give no thought to his wounds and his weariness if he saw his king wounded for his sake!

“Dear children, the Lord gives us a cup of suffering, but it is the cup He drank before. He suffered for us before He called us to suffer any grief for Him.

“And see, dear children, how the chains were broken which bound us in our sins, when He was bound on the cross for us—how the curse and the wrath of God that lay upon us was borne away, for He made peace between God and sinners by the blood of His cross—peace—perfect peace. And the sign that the peace is made is the blessed gift of the Holy Ghost come down from heaven.

“Therefore bear in mind, no works of ours, no merit of ours, have any value in the eyes of God, for all is of grace, and all the merit is that of the Lord Jesus, flowing not from us to God, but from God to us.

“See also how, by the Lord’s death of shame and suffering, the devil was overcome, and thus the wisdom of God made known in all its fullness. For it would seem as though the devil had gained the day when of all men upon earth the Lord Jesus seemed to be the accursed and forsaken one. When He cried, ‘My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?’ He was forsaken as no saint has ever been forsaken by God. It was to this forsaking He looked forward when He sweat great drops of blood upon the mount of Olives—and yet all the while He never ceased to be that which He is now in heaven—God over all.

“Therefore, dear children, if sorrow and suffering come upon you, and it seems to you as though you were forsaken, remember the cross of Jesus.”—From “Three Friends of God.”

"None of Our Business."

[A little girl was heard to finish her evening prayer with these words: "And I saw a poor little girl on the street to-day, cold and barefooted; but it's none of our business: is it, God?"]

None of our business! Wandering and sinful,
All through the streets of the city they go,
Hungry and homeless in the wild weather,—
None of our business! Dare we say so?

None of our business! Children's wan faces,
Haggard and old with their suffering and sin,
(Hold fast your darlings on tender, warm bosom, Sorrow without, but home-light within).

What does it matter that some other woman,
Some common mother in bitter despair,
Wail's in a garret, or sits in a cellar,
Too broken-hearted for weeping or prayer?

None of our business! Sinful and fallen,
How they may jostle us close on the street!
Hold back your garments! Scorn!—they are used to it;
Pass on the other side, lest you should meet,

None of our business! On, then, the music!
On with the feasting, though hearts break forlorn!
Somebody's hungry, somebody's freezing,
Somebody's soul will be lost ere the morn.

Somebody's dying—On with the dancing!—
One for earth's pottage is selling his soul;
One for a bauble has bartered his birthright,
Selling his all for a pitiful dole.

Ah, but One goeth abroad on the mountains,
Over lone deserts, with burning deep sands,
Seeking the lost ones—it is His business—
Bruised though His feet are, and torn though His hands,

Thorn-crowned His head, and His soul sorrow-stricken,
Saving men's souls at such infinite cost;
Broken His heart for the grief of the nations;
It is His business, saving the lost!

God's gifts which we possess, we should esteem highly; ourselves humbly.

The Secret of Health.

Don't worry.

Don't hurry. "Too swift arrives as tardy as too slow."

"Simplify! simplify! simplify!"

Don't over-eat. Don't starve. "Let your moderation be known to all men."

Court the fresh air day and night. "O, if you knew what was in the air!"

Sleep and rest abundantly. Sleep is Nature's benediction.

Spend less nervous energy each day than you make.

Be cheerful. "A light heart lives long."

Think only healthful thoughts. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

"Seek peace and pursue it."

"Work like a man; but don't be worked to death."

Avoid passion and excitement. A moment's anger may be fatal.

Associate with healthy people. Health is contagious as well as disease.

Don't carry the whole world on your shoulders, far less the universe. Trust the Eternal.

Never despair. "Lost hope is a fatal disease."

"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."—The Laws of Life.

If it were only the exercise of the body, the moving of the lips, the bending of the knee, men would as commonly step to heaven as they go to visit a friend; but to separate our thoughts and affections from the world, to draw forth all our graces, and engage each in its proper object, and to hold them to it till the work prospers in our hands; this, this is the difficulty.—Baxter.

A Holy Life.

A holy life is made up of a number of small things—little words, not eloquent speeches or sermons; little deeds, not miracles or battles, nor one great heroic act of mighty martyrdom, make up the true Christian life. The little constant sunbeams, not the lightning; the waters of Siloam “that go softly” in the meek mission of refreshment, not “waters of the river, great and many,” rushing down in noisy torrents, are the true symbols of a holy life. The avoidance of the little evil, little sins, little inconsistencies, little weaknesses, little follies, indiscretion, and imprudences, little foibles, little indulgences of the flesh—the avoidance of such little things as those go far to make up at least the negative beauty of a holy life.—Bonar.

Looking Behind and Before.

The Autumn of the year, like the autumn of life, is a time for retrospection. Let us look back over the three-quarters gone, and see if we can reckon up the occasions they brought us for grateful praise. Then let us look back over the years, over life, and see how these calls for gratitude have multiplied with the swift rush of time. What blessings we have received—in our own persons—life itself, health, reason, occupation for body, mind and heart; in the family, the home, the school, the neighborhood, the town or city, the land; in the church—the public worship, the social meeting for prayer, the opportunities and motives for Christian service; the Sabbath, the Bible, the family altar, the closet, secret communion with Christ, joy in his salvation, sure hope of future glory with him! If we are really Christians, the review will fill us with penitential humility over our ill deserts, and with adoration of the wonderful patience and mercy of God. But our heart-searching and life-searching will prove to be sadly defective if they do not rouse us to strenuous effort to redeem the time; to put into these three remaining months the faithful, earnest, loving work that should have brightened the nine that are past. “Knowing the season, that now it is high time for us to awake out of sleep, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.”—Congregationalist.

A Blessing in Disguise.

There are times when one's way appears to be completely shut up. He is so hedged in by disastrous circumstances; he is so apparently without influence; he has been so completely deprived of resources, that he must just cease from action, must fold his hands and let things drift. That very moment may, however, have been meant for the discovery of something to which his eyes had hitherto been shut. A difficulty is often the door to an opportunity undreamt of. The spring of water greeted Hagar's eyes just when she wailed out her despair to God, and had laid down her boy to die; and refreshing springs of water are often ready for us just when we are despairing. The secret of success is just this, to think deeply and study thoroughly just at the time when an ordinary man feels like despairing and giving up. There have been many who have afterwards thanked God for failures which have been the shutting of a sluice-gate that opened a new and wider and better channel.

THIS saying, “Ask, and ye shall receive,” means nothing less than ask, call, cry, knock, knock vehemently. And this we must do, and on, without ceasing.—Luther.

Be Unselfish.

For a time in youth, while strength is flowing with full stream and the energies are pushing out eagerly for expression, and the ambition is kindled by hope of success, one works with freedom and ease. The enlargement of the personality exhilarates one. The constant opening of new doors of possible activity and success, and many forms of work which are purely personal and selfish, so long as they are connected only with the one life in which they have their sphere of activity, may satisfy and seem to furnish all that the worker needs. There is much work that seems to be desirable for its own sake. It is beautiful, appeals to the natural tastes of the worker, and calls his powers into natural and healthful activity. But all such things are in the nature of things transient. He who begins and ends with himself and the things which he likes and which serve no purpose but his own, will become in time a solitary, lonely, and unhappy toiler. His life must be cushioned with love and hope and trust, with the interests of men and women and children, the larger interests of mankind, the plans for the good of society.—Christian Register.

One Thing at a Time.

“Early in life,” relates a gentleman who has now spent many decades in the service of God and his fellow-man, “I learned from a very simple incident a wholesome lesson, and one which has since been of incalculable benefit to me.

“When I was between twelve and fourteen years old, my father broke up a new field on his farm, and planted it with potatoes, and when the plants were two or three inches high he sent me to hoe it. The ground of that piece was hard to till ; it was matted with grass roots and sprinkled with stones. I hoed the first row, and then stopped to take a general look at the task before me. Grass as high as the potatoes was everywhere, and looking at the whole from any point, it seemed to be a solid mass. I had the work to do all alone, and as I stood staring at the broad reach of weedy soil, I felt a good mind not to try to do anything further then with it.

“Just that minute I happened to look down at the hill nearest my feet. The grass didn’t seem just quite as thick there, and I said to myself “I can hoe this one well enough.”

“When it was done, another thought came to help me ; I sha’n’t have to hoe but one hill at a time, at any rate.

“And so I went to the next, and next. But here I stopped again and looked over the field. That gave me another thought, too. I could hoe every hill as I came to it ; it was only looking away off to all the hills that made the whole seem impossible.

“‘I won’t look at it,’ I said ; and I pulled my hat over my eyes so I could see nothing but the spot where my hoe had to dig.

“In course of time I had gone over the whole field, looking only at the hill in hand, and my work was done.

“I learned a lesson tugging away at those grass roots which I never forgot. It was to look right down at the one thing to be done now, and not hinder and discourage myself by looking off at the things I haven’t come to. I’ve been working ever since that Summer at the hill nearest my feet, and I have always found it the easiest way to get a hard task accomplished, as it is the true way to prepare a field for the harvest.”

Willing or Unwilling.

What a charming world this would be if we could always do what we feel like doing, or, if we could feel like doing what is required of us; if the will and inclination and enthusiasm of our natures would invariably supplement our efforts. But they won't, and there is no help for it. What are we to do? Stand still? Go back? Impossible! There is nothing to do but to hold fast, "to keep pegging away," to "walk by the same rule and mind the same thing" by night and by day, at 3 o'clock in the morning, the ebb of the day, and at 10, when the vital forces are at their flood.

No human being is always at his best. It takes a thousand circumstances of weather, season, diet, repose, social stimulus, interior consciousness, to put a man or a woman into the highest possible working condition. Most of us labor under some physical or mental disability in much that we do. A headache or an east wind, an untimely interruption, a grief or a sudden joy, steps in just at the wrong time, and hinders or mars our work so that we cannot get it done to our satisfaction. These things are common to all.

"I must have been mad when I painted that," said a distinguished artist, as from the walls of a public gallery he surveyed one of his masterpieces, and he ordered it back to his studio, that he might retouch what displeased him.

. Most of us in surveying our work can see where it might have been done better, and yet in doing it again, we are apt to fall into fresh errors. Notwithstanding, we must press on, doing the best we can, in spite of humors, oppositions, difficulties, ever keeping our sails in such trim that when a favorable wind does blow we may be wafted swiftly along our course.

Old Saws in Rhyme.

Actions speak louder than words ever do;
You can't eat your cake, and hold on to it too.

When the cat is away, then the little mice play;
Where there is a will there is always a way.

One's deep in the mud as the other in mire;
Don't jump from the frying-pan into the fire.

There's no use crying o'er milk that is spilt;
No accuser is needed by conscience of guilt.

There must be some fire wherever is smoke;
The pitcher goes oft to the well till it's broke.

By rogues falling out honest men get their due;
Whoever it fits, he must put on the shoe.

All work and no play will make Jack a dull boy;
A thing of much beauty is ever a joy.

A half loaf is better than no bread at all;
And pride always goeth before a sad fall.

Fast bind and fast find, have two strings to your bow;
Contentment is better than riches, we know.

The devil finds work for hands idle to do;
A miss is as good as a mile is, to you.

You speak of the devil, he's sure to appear;
You can't make a silk purse from out of sow's ear.

A man by his company always is known;
Who live in a glass house should not throw a stone.

When the blind leads the blind both will fall in the ditch;

It's better born lucky than being born rich.

Little pitchers have big ears; burnt child dreads the fire;

Though speaking the truth, no one credits a liar.

Speech may be silver, but silence is gold;
There's never a fool like the fool who is old.

God's Help.

God sometimes helps us in a singular way. He sets us back in order to help us forward, and casts us down in order that we may be uplifted. Saul of Tarsus must be felled to the ground before he can rise up into the pardoned and powerful Apostle Paul. All through his subsequent life he practiced on the principle that when he was "weak" then was he the strongest, and when he was poorest he was making other people rich. The less of Paul, the more of Christ. God ordains that the path of hard trials should be the straight road to the highest blessings. What a train of troubles overtook Joseph from the time when he was put into the pit until he was put into the prison! But both pit and prison were the direct road to the premiership and the palace! When he looks his contemptible brothers in the eye he can say unto them, "Ye thought evil against me, but God meant it unto good." This is a lesson that thousands of the best, truest, and most consecrated are constantly learning; the hardest and most humbling tasks and trials will graduate Christ's pupils into the highest honors of discipleship. It always helps a grass-plot to run a sharp mower over it, and a grape-vine to put a sharp pruning knife into it. The brilliant Frederick W. Robertson felt sorely disappointed when he could not secure a commission in the British army. Abraham Lincoln was equally disappointed that President Zachary Taylor did not make him a commissioner in the Land Office. So little did either of those great men know of the path in which God was leading them. Fellow Christians, when we ask our loving God to help us, we must let him choose his own medicines, and appoint for us his own way.—T. L. Cuyler.

Shining Christian.

A friend visiting a lighthouse lately, said to the keeper:

"Are you not afraid to live here? It is a dreadful place to be constantly in."

"No," replied the man. "I am not afraid. We never think of ourselves here."

"Never think of yourselves. How is that?"

The reply was a good one: "We know that we are perfectly safe, and only think of having our lights burning brightly, and keeping the reflectors clear, that those in danger may be saved."

Christians are safe in a house built on a rock, which cannot be moved by the wildest storm, and in a spirit of holy unselfishness they should let their light gleam across the dark waves of sin, that the imperiled ones may be guided into the harbor of heaven.—Kind Words.

For His Sake.

Anything done for Christ is great, and it will be sure to bring a great reward. The greatness of him to whom the service is given makes the service great. Sir Walter Raleigh cast his cloak into the muddy street for Queen Elizabeth to step upon. The act, which if done for another would have been thought trifling or ridiculous, was commemorated in history and romance as great and honorable in him because it was done for his sovereign. So the smallest gift you bestow, the humblest work you do, the feeblest talent you employ in the service of Christ is made excellent and glorious by the infinite greatness and glory of him whom you serve. Because you cannot do a great thing, do not sit down idly and do nothing. Because you cannot startle the world with benefactions, do not fail to give anything.

An Infidel Silenced.

The following is a true story: At a hall in London where unbelievers were permitted to state their objections to the Christian faith, a young man who had often spoken there came forward one evening and said:

"Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen,—I have determined to show you to-night what the Bible really is; and in order to be fair I will not take selected passages, but will allow the book to open where it will, and read you the first verse on which my eye lights. You will then see in what kind of a book the Christians believe."

He allowed the Bible to fall upon his hand, and read aloud—

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."—James i: 27.

Somewhat abashed, and amid the joy of the Christians, and confusion to his own party, he opened the Bible again, and read:—

"Is not this the fast which I have chosen? To loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke."—Isaiah lviii: 6.

Still more abashed, he read again as the book opened:—

"Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow."—Isaiah i: 16.

He made one last attempt and read:

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."—Micah vi: 8.

Disappointed and chagrined, the skeptic left the platform, overwhelmed by the sneers of his companions, and the tumultuous joy of the Christians.

God's Plans.

Many men wreck their lives by determinedly carrying out their own plans without reference to the plans of God. In an army, every part, every brigade and regiment must wait the commander's orders. If any battalion moves independently, though ever so heroically, it not only confuses the whole plan of battle, but brings disaster to itself as well in the end. So each individual must always wait for God's command to move. Keep your eye on the pillar of cloud and fire that leads. Rests when the pillar rests, move when it moves. Never lag behind, but be sure you never run ahead. You can make the clock strike before the hour by putting your own hands to it, but it will strike wrong. You can hurry the unfolding of God's providence, but you will only mar the Divine plan unless you wait for him.

You can tear the rosebud open before the time when it would naturally open, but you destroy the beauty of the rose. So we spoil many a gift or blessing which God is preparing for us by our own eager haste. He would weave all our lives into patterns of loveliness. He has a perfect plan for each. It is only when we refuse to work according to his plan that we mar the web. Stop meddling with threads of your life as they come from the Lord's hands. Every time you interfere you make a flaw. Keep your hands off and let God weave as he pleases. Do you think you know better than he does what your life ought to be?

Criticising the Minister.

Ministers are public teachers, and of course come in for their share of criticism. They are targets for shooters from all quarters. They are pincushions, and not a few think it their right to come round occasionally and stick one in. Some people think it is good for the minister's health—physical and spiritual—to be well punctured. These criticisms are varied. Sometimes they are just, sometimes not. Sometimes they are kindly—oftener hasty—once in a while vicious. Sometimes they are amusing—once in a while painful.

Now they are called peculiar, now not sociable, now ill-tempered; now too plain of speech, now not plain enough; now proud, and now affected, which is the same thing; now they preach too loud, now not loud enough; now too long, and now too—— I was going to say too short; but I hold, I have not heard that criticism often. Now they are all the time after money; "all the time going down into a man's pocket book"; and now, "why don't you have a better choir?" which means much more money—if not more piety. Now they are too liberal, and now not liberal enough; now he does not go to see some sick one—especially when he does not know that one is sick—and so the gathering wave rolls on until it becomes a flood. But I stay. I have just turned to a page of personal experience which I have had turned down for some time. Oh, it is easy to criticise. Any one can do that much. What shall the minister do in such a case? Paul, under a far greater burden, said: "None of these things move me." Let us be sure to have the Master's approval, and to maintain a conscience void of offence among men, and go on. Blessed the people who see in their minister, not an angel, but a sincere, earnest servant of the Master, for whom they daily pray, and whose hands they hold up. Such have a right to criticise the minister, and no others have.

Be Cheerful.

"You find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people; why not make earnest efforts to confer that pleasure on others? You will find half the battle is gained if you never allow yourself to say anything gloomy." We were recently impressed by the above wholesome remark at a most opportune season. A Christian was bemoaning the sad condition of affairs. Nothing was right in the church or out of it. The crops were failing; the financial outlook of the country was most unpropitious; the weather was most unfavorable to health; and, as he spoke, his very face reflected a continual prophecy of ill and mental disturbance. The worst feature of all was that at the very moment that he indulged these feelings he stood before an unbelieving world as the representative of a religion that seeks to fill the soul with "joy unspeakable and full of glory." He not only rendered himself miserable by fruitless repinings, but he caused others to stumble through his gloomy forebodings, instead of ministering to their highest good. In whatever light we view such conduct, we must see how utterly at variance it is with the Christian state.

Sons of God! Heirs to an eternal mansion! Let us cultivate cheerfulness. Verily, it is the way to show our kinship with the saints in light.

1, 2, 3, clear; 4, 5, 6, variable; 7, 8, 9, autumn wind; 10, 11, 12, 13, clear and cool; 14, 15, 16, rain; 17, 18, clear; 19, 20, stormy; 21, 22, 23, snow; 24, 25, variable; 26, 27, 28, frosty; 29, 30, clear; 31, north-west winds and cloudy.

Help Yourself.

Fight your own battles. Hoe your own row. Ask no favors of any one, and you will succeed a thousand times better than one who is always beseeching one's influence and patronage. No one will help you as you help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs. The first step will be such a long one, perhaps; but, carving your own way up the mountain, you make each one lead to another, and stand firm while you chop still another out. Men who have made fortunes are not those who have had five thousand dollars given them to start with, but boys who have started fair with a well-earned dollar or two.

Men who acquire fame have never been thrust into popularity by puffs begged or paid for, or given in friendly spirit. They have outstretched their own hands and touched the public heart. Men who win love do their own wooing; and I never knew a man to fail so signally as one who induced his affectionate grandmother to speak a good word for him. Whether you work for fame, for love, for money, or for anything else, work with your hands, and heart and brain. Say "I will," and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have to say, "I have dragged you up." Too many friends sometimes hurt a man more than none at all.

Gentleness in Christ-Likeness.

Gentleness in Christ-likeness. Jesus, our model in everything, is a most wonderful model here. He was rejected by "his own," and betrayed by one of his disciples; he was tried, mocked, scourged, crucified; and yet he bore it all in gentleness and submission, never saying a harsh word or doing an unkind deed that would afterwards have to be repented of and forgiven; and when afterward he hung upon the cross, and was reviled, he reviled not again, but committed himself unto Him that judgeth righteously. At all times and everywhere he showed that his life was subject to the commanding power of the religion that he came to establish and to teach. Such gentleness is not to be confounded with weakness. It is not timidity or white-facedness. It is the truest courage, a divine virtue, the consummate flower of a life filled with the power and spirit of love.

Self.

Without question it is the character of the motive that adds to or that detracts from the value of every deed. Inasmuch as it was ultimately done unto self, rather than unto Christ and for Christ's sake, an act of seeming abnegation and denial of self may lack the sweet fragrance of devotedness and disinterested obedience, and so come short of God's approval—and it is His approving smile that counts, not man's. Oh, to free our ways from the entangling power of selfishness which is rank hypocrisy, putting on the garb and countenance of an angel of light, whilst it is in reality a child of darkness.

TO ABIDE in Christ is the secret of perseverance is well doing. Work, once taken up earnestly and entered upon with hopes which experience shows to have been too sanguine, palls by degrees upon the taste, becomes irksome, and at last is discontinued. So it will be, so must be, where it is either taken up from lower motives, or where we do not habitually realize that it is God's work we are doing.

CONJECTURE OF THE WEATHER.

1, 2, 3, frost; 4, 5, 6, cold and windy; 7, 8, 9, clear; 10, 11, 12, cold rains; 13, 14, 15, clear; 16, 17, fair; 18, 19, 20, stormy; 21, 22, 23, clear; 24, 25, 26, cold rains; 27, 28, 29, 30, Indian Summer.

True Greatness.

What is true greatness? Greatness as man levels up his fellow-man, or greatness as God counts it? Surely, the latter. Hence how insignificant the merely artificial differences in rank and position set up by the circumstances of life. The extent of one's sphere, the being placed in the upper and lower strata of society, the results of one's labors even—are these things then the true data by which to measure real greatness? Is it not rather the measure of fidelity that is after all the true standard? The poet hit it rightly when he wrote

"Honor and shame from no condition rise,
Act well thy part; there all the honor lies."

The energy and the spirit of devotedness and the thorough-going earnestness which illumine the sphere, these things are greater than the sphere itself, no matter what it is. And the higher sphere, as it is generally considered, is often no honor to a man, who does not fill that sphere with honest endeavor.

Confession.

A German prince, traveling in France, was told he was welcome to liberate any one galley slave whom he might select. His inquiries among them brought a universal complaint of injustice and of injured innocence, till at last one confessed humbly that he had got only what he deserved. Fixing his eyes upon him, the prince exclaimed:

"You wicked wretch! It is a pity you should be placed among so many honest men; you shall not stay with them another day."

Then turning to the officer, he said:

"This is the man, sir, whom I wished to be released."

Take the Children to Church.

But "do they not have the Sunday-school?" Yes, and a well equipped and Christ-presenting Sunday-school is the right arm of the church. But a right arm is not the main body, and arm dissevered from the body is a bloodless and impotent thing. All honor to the zealous, devoted Sunday-school teacher! He or she is often an actual pastor or shepherd to guide to Jesus those who have no spiritual guidance at home. But the Sunday-school never was ordained to be and never can be a substitute for the regular services of the sanctuary. Bring your children with you to church, dear friends. It is their resting place as well as yours.

The Lord's Gifts.

Precious are the gifts which our Lord bestows upon His disciples. There is nothing on earth to compare with them. Forgiveness of sin, life and salvation—peace, joy and blessedness—He grants in the plenitude of His grace. But great blessings involve great responsibilities, and precious gifts imply sacred duties. We are to follow Jesus and enjoy His guidance and His bounty; but we are to take up our cross and follow him, doing His holy and blessed will and not our own.

But too often we poor sinners think only of the blessedness in God's kingdom; and forget the labor of love and patience of hope to which we are called. We must follow the Saviour through the tribulations of earth before we reach the glories of heaven. First comes the work, then the saint's everlasting rest. We are richly blessed, therefore we should willingly and faithfully dispense blessing in the name and to the praise of Him who blesses us.—Lutheran Standard.

God Sees Us.

A traveller in Africa relates that when he was among one of the most savage of all the tribes he met in that country, his attention was attracted by the idol of the tribe placed upon a high pole, as if intended to convey the idea that the idol could see all around the country, and behold every one of the people. Such was the superstition of these barbarians, that they believed that every act of dishonesty would thus be seen by their god so as not to go unpunished. The effect of this credulity was said to be that no knavery was perpetrated within sight of the uplifted idol, and the most valuable property was perfectly secure. Evil-doing was avoided within the supposed sight of the false god; and so the thought of an idol's eye to see all that was done proved advantageous, however imaginary the apprehension might be.

The inquiry, among us, is now made on every hand, What shall be done to restrain the prevailing disregard for the rights of property, through which there is so much appropriation of what belongs to others, on both a large and a small scale? What is to put a stop to stealing in its various forms, through the deplorable success of which, in not a few instances, our young men are in no small danger of becoming greatly demoralized so as to forsake the path of rectitude, heedless as to consequences? These vital questions are receiving various answers, among which the restraint upon dishonesty, suggested by the elevation of the African idol, is too little considered. That heathenish superstition may represent a practical verity. What the false god was supposed to see, the true God actually does see. The best safeguard from peculation and swindling, therefore, may come from the inculcation of a stronger belief in the existence and universal presence of the all-seeing God, and the establishment of an abiding conviction like that which finds expression in the ancient words, "Thou God seest me."

While the Day Lasts.

It will not last long. Your day, my day, the world's day, the day of opportunity, the day of grace, the day of salvation, all days are swiftly passing away: and the great day, the last day, will surely and speedily come. Now, there is opportunity for us to work; by-and-by the time will be past. While it is day we may work the work of God, and do what he has commanded us; but if we idle this present opportunity away, it will never return, and the neglect of to-day may never be repaired. To-morrow will bring the work for to-morrow, and every day and every year will bring its appropriate duties. Let the work of to-day be done to-day, and then we may calmly and peacefully await the coming of the morrow, if indeed the morrow shall ever come to us.—The Christian

THE earth grows more beautiful as men grow better and wiser. Mark, how the sense of beauty reacts upon the nature of all savage and civilized alike, disposing to deeds of gentleness and peace. Man treads more softly as the scene grows more beautiful.

THERE are two wings by which a man soars above the world—sincerity and purity. The former regards the intention, the latter the affection. That aspires and aims at a likeness to God, that makes us really like him.—Thomas à Kempis.

WANTED! Canvassers

FOR OUR PUBLICATIONS.

Does it Pay to Canvass?

On this point the agents of the great Methodist Book Concern say:

"Surely it does pay to canvass. We have on our books the names of scores of persons—ministers, teachers, students, invalids, persons who have some leisure, and able-bodied men and women, who are making from $15 to $50 a week in commissions every week of their lives.

Why cannot YOU do likewise?

The selling of books by subscription has come to be so generally practiced that the larger and more profitable part of the book trade in this country is now managed by that method. Nearly every notable book of the last decade has been presented to the American people through the medium of the canvasser, and it is safe to assert that the benefits thus conferred on the public at large are incalculable, since the noblest and most instructive publications are by this means brought home to the attention of the book reading and book-buying masses of the people. Next to the preacher of the Gospel, we believe, stands the man or the woman who helps disseminate a good and noble book, and the canvasser is to this extent a public benefactor."

Persons desiring to add to their incomes, or those who are from any cause out of employment, are earnestly desired to write for terms and territory. Such a correspondence can but result to mutual advantage. Address
